Last standing Carstairs elevator to come down this week

By Shaune Mohl

After a two year battle between the Friends of Rescuing the Carstairs Elevator (FORCE) and AgriCore United, the largest standing structure that towers over the community will be coming down at some point this week.

FORCE, spearheaded by Gwen Day, an area resident, has tried to work towards a solution to save the elevator, but after many attempts to save the elevator their efforts failed.

The first major roadblock which occurred was approximately two months ago when AgriCore wouldn't authorize FORCE to conduct a Phase II environmental study.

This study would have tested the land to ensure that it wasn't contaminated and since AgriCore wouldn't allow the group to go ahead with a Phase II study they didn't want to take over ownership with the potential risk of contamination.

And, the latest piece of the puzzle to fall apart was the request to the Province to have the elevator deemed a 'Heritage Site.'

"We heard last week that we did not qualify," said Gwen Day, chairperson of FORCE.

Day explained that the Province's excuse was the fact that there has already been one elevator in the Province from the same era saved because it was deemed to be a Heritage Site.

"The Leduc elevator was saved because it received it's heritage site status. The Province says they felt they only needed one in Alberta," Day explained.

Day says that applying for Heritage status from the Province was really their last chance of saving the elevator.

"We knew the chances were slim, but we have tried everything," Day added. "Without that we could have gone ahead, but it would have made it more difficult and much more difficult to finance."

FORCE members spent a few days last week removing old scales, sliding doors, posters, chalk boards, and basically anything that they could get their hands on.

Day says that FORCE hopes to open up an information booth in the future with an elevator type theme where these items will be displayed.

"We want it to act as an information booth but also a place people can come (and) learn about how important the elevators once were," she added.

A Didsbury based business, Columbia Rail, has been hired by AgriCore to knock down the last standing elevator in Carstairs, and practically the entire area.

Columbia Rail would not confirm the exact date they plan to knock the elevator down, but confirmed it will occur at some point this week.

Watch next week for more stories on the elevator and the FORCE group.

Man back in custody after escaping custody

Man back in custody after escaping custody

After bolting out of the Didsbury provincial courthouse June 21, a young man has been captured and sentenced to jail.

Frederick D. Robertson pleaded guilty Sept. 29 to escaping lawful custody, failing to appear in court, and not living where he was told to live. June 21 had been Robertson's fourth consecutive Wednesday court appearance on various charges. After running out of the building, he obstructed a young woman and banged on her car, pleading with her to let him in, court heard Wednesday. When she refused and drove off, he ran for two kilometres through backyards, leading police on a chase, until stopping at a propane-fuelled pick-up truck in a residential garage. Police apprehended Robertson after he got the truck started but couldn't manage to move it. Robertson was sentenced to seven months in jail.

Driver lead police on chase

A Calgary man who refused to obey police at an Olds checkpoint was punished in Didsbury provincial court Sept. 29. Neil Andrew Labatte, 30, ignored two officers on the road pointing at him to pull over in the early evening of Oct. 11, 2003.

He was followed by officers for 12 kilometres at speeds up to 180 km/h, ending on Highway 2 south.

After a short drive on the busy highway, he finally stopped and was apprehended.

He scored the lowest score possible on the breathalyzer that still carries a charge.

He pleaded guilty to careless driving but was not convicted of driving impaired.

Labatte has completed a 90 day driving suspension and has until Jan. 17, 2005 to pay $2,000 in fines. Five hundred of those dollars will be a donation to Mothers Against Drunk Drivers, one of the largest crime victims organizations in the world.

$1,150 for drunk driving

Thirty-three year-old Mark Anthonius Pals stood before the provincial court Sept. 29 for an incident last year involving impaired operation of a motor vehicle.

Pals was driving along Highway 766, near Olds, when his car veered off the road and into the snowy ditch, said crown prosecutor Danny Elliott.

When police arrived on the scene, they found him in the driver's seat with the engine running, but stuck in the snow unable to move his car out. Having already served a 90 day driving suspension, Pals pleaded guilty to impaired operation of a motor vehicle and blood alcohol exceeding the legal limit from the Dec. 17, 2003 incident.

He has been ordered by Judge Frank Maloney to pay $1,150 in fines by Nov. 30.

Pedestrian hit

A man who drove into a 22-year-old pedestrian on a Carstairs street, causing the victim serious brain damage, before fleeing the scene without offering any assistance, has avoided jail.

Gregory Joseph Foran, 35, pleaded guilty in Didsbury provincial court on Sept. 27 to a Traffic Safety Act charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

The victim, from Fort McMurray, was walking alone at about 11 p.m. on June 5 when he was struck down.

"He (Foran) just left, leaving the victim lying on the road," Crown prosecutor Danny Elliott told Judge Gerald Meagher.

Witnesses helped the victim until paramedics arrived. He was flown by STARS to Foothills Hospital. Elliott said the victim suffered "very, very serious injuries", including brain and nerve damage, in the mishap.

At last report, the victim remained in hospital.

Foran was originally charged with hit and run under the Criminal Code - a charge that carries a maximum penalty of five years incarceration - but pleaded guilty to the lesser charge as part of a plea bargain.

The Crown did not believe Foran fled with the intention of escaping criminal or civil liability, prompting the plea bargain, Elliott told the judge. Judge Meagher fined Foran $800.

Man crashed into truck

A Sundre man who rolled a quad and slammed his vehicle into a parked truck in two separate incidents has been fined almost $5,000.

Steven Barrie Bruce, 19, pleaded guilty on Sept. 27 to a number of charges, including possession of stolen property and drunk driving.

On August 30, RCMP were called to a location near Olds with reports that someone was driving an ATV in an erratic manner, court heard. When officers arrived, the driver of the quad, the accused, took off, leading police on a brief chase. Bruce then rolled the quad and ran into a farm yard, where he was apprehended.

The quad had been stolen earlier from a nearby residence. A breathalyzer test indicated the accused's blood alcohol level at the time was 140 mg per cent.

On Sept. 11 the accused ran his vehicle into a parked vehicle in Olds and left the scene. He caused thousands of dollars damage to the truck. He had no insurance on his own vehicle.

Bruce failed to show up for two subsequent court appearances.

Judge Meagher told the accused to change his ways.

"If there ever was a time to smarten up, the time is now," the judge said. "Society is only going to be protected in the future if you change your ways. It's time to start getting responsible."

The judge fined Bruce $862 on the drunk driving charge, $575 on the possession of stolen property charge, $115 on each of the failing to appear charges, $402 on the failing to remain at the scene of an accident charge, and $2,875 on the no insurance charge.

The judge also ordered the accused to pay $500 restitution.

Drunk driver fined

A man stopped by police in Sundre after being spotted driving erratically has been convicted of drunk driving.

Francisco Figueira pleaded guilty to a charge of driving with a blood alcohol level greater than 80 mg per cent.

The accused was stopped at about 11 p.m. on Aug. 28, court heard. His blood alcohol level was 170 mg per cent, or more than two times the legal limit.

"I apologize. I should have known better," Figueira said.

The judge fined him $862 and prohibited him from driving for one year.

Man ran up hotel bill

A 53-year-old man who ran up more than $1,000 in unpaid bills at a Carstairs motel has been placed on probation and ordered to pay back the money.

Bret Forster pleaded guilty on Sept. 27 to charges of fraud and uttering a forged document.

The accused lived at a Carstairs motel from Feb. 13 to May 8, court heard. During that time he paid only $400, leaving an outstanding bill of $1,200.

In an unrelated matter, the accused forged and cashed a $500 cheque on his mother's account in December 2002.

The judge handed him a one year suspended sentence, including probation on the fraud charge, and fined him $100 on the cheque charge.

Mountain View County Council Candidates- Division 3 & 4

Dave Derksen

Kathy Blain

Ian Harvie

Henry Kuelker

Darlene Parker

MVC All Candidates' Forum

by Carla Victor

Controversial topics facing Mountain View County's present council were up for open debate at the All Candidates' Forum, Oct. 5.

More than 125 people heard from 12 of the 16 candidates vying for county council.

Questions put to candidates revolved around issues that have attracted much debate over the past term.

People wanted to know:

1. Why the need for closed meetings?

2. Explanations for alleged conflict of interest surrounding the county's choice for a real estate company, which a current councillor is affiliated with;

3. Council's process concerning the new administration building;

4. To current council, what have you done for the county in your last term?

5. To candidate hopefuls, how will your past with the county affect your ability to govern?

Before question period began, moderator Terry Peterman (an Olds Town councillor not seeking re-election) instructed people to keep questions relevant to council business and avoid personal topics.

"That's the way a political forum should be, politics shouldn't get personal," said Peterman.

Incumbents Ian Harvie, Division 4 and Dave Derksen, Division 3, explained why council goes into closed meetings.

Both quoted the Municipal Government Act stating councils are required to discuss topics of personnel, land sales or acquisitions or topics of such nature, in private. Any decision made by council on such topics are made public consumption.

Liz Negropontes, Division 5 candidate, answered how her past conflicts with the county would affect her ability to be on council.

"I have learned a lot and have grown up in the past few years I can work with people and can talk to them directly about issues. The past is the past."

A question concerning candidates support to direct administration to provide help to those working on petitions started the next debate.

Inflated legal costs being paid by Mountain View County and their choice of legal firms was questioned.

Kathy Blain and Henry Kuelker spoke to those issues stating the county should provide more support for residents working on petitions and not waste money on Edmonton lawyers who have larger travel expenses than a Calgary lawyer would.

Harvie explained municipal law is an expertise handled by few firms. He said their Edmonton firm is looking at opening a Calgary office. Had the people behind the petition read the MGA for rules regarding petitions, lawyers wouldn't have been needed to explain the latest petition's insufficiencies.

In all, candidates stated why they were running for council and asked for votes on Oct. 18.

Excerpts from candidate's speeches from Candidates:

Division 3

Dave Derksen: "Mountain View County is a good place to live. The fact that we have some reserves that has already been alluded to didn't come automatically, it didn't come by accident it came by planning."

In order to do planning you need people to do that, I believe that for myself, I have been part of that and I'm grateful for the opportunity to represent people of division 3," said Derksen.

He said there are issues that will face every council. "Those are things we need to put behind and move to the future."

Henry Kuelker: "I was strongly against the county office building at the airport. We had four devastating years on the farm with no relief in sight. Each year our taxes went up, this year alone, a whopping 17.9 per cent on farmsteads, county-wide."

Kuelker spoke to the taxation challenges facing residents and promised his attention to those matters.

"I will try my best to work for good roads, fair and lower taxes, to be frugal, honest, accountable and hard working."

Division 4

Kathy Blain: "The key question for council members should be, what is in the best interest of our community?"

"Councillors not only need to ensure they ask this in the right interest and the right motivation, they need ask it in an ethical manner."

"Council needs to seek public approval in advance to any council spending that will have a potential negative financial impact on the community as a whole."

Pretending to be powerful and believing that you have been given the divine right to make decisions without accountability is both dangerous and corrupt."

"Such behaviour is the hallmark of the ethically challenged. In order to restore confidence in council a willingness to support open government is needed."

Blain ran out of time before her speech was finished, but not before she touched on what council should do, such as: deal with public issues in public and they must not hire lawyers to "discredit and downgrade the wishes of the people", to name a few.

Ian Harvie: "I believe to be a successful leader one has to go forward when everything else is standing still. I (have taken) leadership and supportive roles over the past three years, developing policy on your behalf."

"(In areas such as) long range planning, economic development strategies, determine the type and location of development, and how the county will go about attracting new development and business."

Harvie stated his support of area hospitals, protective services, rural crime watch and developing long-range replacement programs for fire services.

Harvie said he has supported agriculture tax deferrals and taking education taxation off rural property.

"In saying that the market values have gone up dramatically, we are in a very productive area of growth being located between Calgary and Red Deer and those have issues and the market values follow that."

Darlene Parker: "I decided to run for Mountain View County because I wanted to bring a different perspective to the table. Given that the average age of farmers in the county is approximately 66 years old, I feel we need to look at how we will attract and maintain young families, which includes creating an environment that encourages entrepreneurial small businesses."

"Given the current market values of land in some divisions this is a barrier to younger people starting out in agriculture."

Parker said she has a proven track record of community leadership and the commitment to see projects through to their successful completion.

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

Election Time

TAMARA COLLINS
EDITORIAL

So this is the week of the big election. I have had opportunities to interview each of the running candidates, and I have been very impressed.

I have heard each of the 13 candidates speak about the same concerns; taxes, youth, infrastructure and greenspace. I guess it is no secret then what Didsbury needs. The big question is, how do we get it?

I really like the present council, I think each one has their own opinions and ideas, and that is very important on a council.

Mayor Dorothy Moore, the only one of the present council re-running, is definitely someone I feel comfortable leading Didsbury into the future. Dorothy is always friendly, smiling and ready to talk. She listens to what people want, and does her best. She is a very intelligent woman and has done Didsbury proud.

Ray Lea, who is running against Dorothy, has a great track record, and is very personable. Ray is a well known man, and lead Didsbury through nine years.

It is going to be a tough decision, I am sure Didsbury will make the right one.

Don't forget to vote on Oct. 18th at the Memorial Complex.

Wonderings of the heart

by Margaret Fradley

"For Better or Worse"

Mother Teresa is said to have said "Let no one ever come to you without leaving better." What a gem that short excerpt is. When we meet someone, for the first time, or are just acquainted with them or are good friends, after having spent some time with them, do we leave them encouraged, feeling uplifted, or just better for having been with us, or do we at times leave them somewhat depressed, concerned and no better for having met us? I keep up correspondence with a relative, whenever I receive a letter, it always leaves me 'down' for there are continual complaints, sharing bad health, or just issues that are not uplifting.

It causes me to ponder, just how do I leave another person with whom I have just had a conversation. Many people today are struggling with one issue or another, many are in very poor health, or just need a 'boost' a word of encouragement, a 'pat on the back' a phone call or card, have we become too busy for these important and opportune times that are presented to us each day?

I have said many times and will say it yet again, we all need each other, sometimes we need to lean on others, and sometimes others need to lean on us. Are we there for them? The little articles I write are mostly what I need to hear myself. Have a good day!!

ADDRESS BY PRIME MINISTER PAUL MARTIN

In reply to the Speech from the Throne

Mr. Speaker, let me congratulate the Member for Davenport and the Member for Gatineau, the mover and the seconder of the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne.

I want to begin today by expressing my appreciation, on behalf of all Parliamentarians and indeed all Canadians, to those members who have not returned with us. We thank them for their service to their constituents and to their country.

I want also to offer a special welcome to all the incoming members of Parliament, the strong new voices that will sound in this place. We have been entrusted by the people to serve them, to represent them, to debate here and vote on their behalf. I say to you today: Let's make them proud.

I consider it a tribute to the diverse, multicultural nature of Canada that 34 members who sit in this House were not born in this nation but chose Canada and came to live here from a total of 20 countries. Our Parliament is richer for their presence.

Mr. Speaker, the work of the 38th Parliament has begun. The elected representatives of this great land have again gathered in this chamber, where Lester Pearson announced the creation of Medicare, where John Diefenbaker rose on Dominion Day to introduce a Bill of Rights, where Tommy Douglas told us it was not too late to build a better world.

As we stand and speak here today, as we engage in this ceremony of renewal, we are adhering to a tradition older than our country itself. On this day, Parliament is at the centre of the national conversation. It must remain there.

The achievements we forge in this place and in our nation will not be those of one person or one party. We act here and speak here on behalf of the people of Canada, almost 32 million strong. Our accomplishments, our triumphs and so too our failings will become part of the collective legacy of our time.

What are we as Canadians to pass on to those who one day will work where we do and live where we do? What kind of Canada will it be? Will we honour the sacrifices of the past by handing over an even better country for the future?

If our answer is to be yes, and the answer must be yes, then we in this minority Parliament have a critical role to play in building a 21st century economy, in protecting and strengthening our social foundations and in securing for Canada a role of pride and influence in the world.

I know a lot of people are wondering, in this chamber and across the country, if we can make this Parliament work for Canadians. If we can make co-operation not just rhetoric but reality.

In this House, we feel strongly about our beliefs, and we express them with vigour. This is a place of passion and partisanship. That will not change, nor should it.

Election candidates

Dear Editor,

I have been following your introductions to the upcoming electoral candidates. I am a resident of the county but own a business in Didsbury and am interested in what the candidates have to say.

I have read a lot about improvements to the town. Everyone enjoys green space and recreational facilities. No one would deny that programs for youth are a good thing. My interest however lies in how council would propose to pay for these things. I would also like to hear someone commit to the completion of the new ball park before suggesting new projects. Grant dollars, local donations, and volunteer labour have been appropriated. What responsibility does the town have to see this through?

It is no secret that Didsbury has high taxes. This is true of residential and even more so for business. Several candidates have mentioned lowering taxes but have not suggested where funds for operating expenses would come from. In the current situation of high business tax, Didsbury does not offer an economic climate to attract new businesses.

Business owners know that success is not all about revenue. They also have to consider expenses and cut overhead when necessary so that at the end of the month there is not a deficit. Council should be operating on the same principle I am waiting for a candidate to comment on "balancing the budget."

Our province is enjoying a budget surplus because Ralph Klein was willing to make some tough decisions. He was not always popular. Programs were cut and some people lost jobs. I am looking for a candidate who is willing to make some difficult decisions; who is willing to be criticized. One who is willing to take a serious look at spending. Didsbury needs a council who can stand up to the public and say bear with us for a few years. We must all make some short term sacrifices and forego some programs. Then maybe in ten years they will be asking us, "what shall we do with the surplus?"

Vickie Poffenroth

Thanks Mr. Ian Taylor

Dear Editor,

Thanks, Ian, for all of your time attending Midway Home & School meetings on the first Monday of the month on many, many Mondays. Thanks for adding your voice on our behalf at Board meetings. Thanks for supporting our graduates and helping to celebrate their achievements at the annual Pie Social, and we sincerely hope to see you at many Pie Socials to come. Thanks to you and Mary for stuffing the Christmas goody bags for the kids, and for being there for the concert, too. May we add our best wishes for all health and happiness to you and yours, and please accept our sincere thanks,

Lorraine Bannister on behalf of the Midway Home & School.

School Fees

tory, non-accountable and encourage a multi-tiered system. I would suggest the reason user fees are such a major source of revenue is because they are so easy to obtain. Most parents are extremely uncomfortable with resisting such requests fearing repercussions for their actions. Withholding our fees though, does not constitute a debt. No contract has been entered into. A defamation lawsuit could occur if one's name is listed on a credit watch should the school board try that tactic.

Parents for Public Education is a non-political parent/guardian group concerned with the current approach to funding public education in Alberta. A downloadable form on their website (members.shaw.ca/publicedu) informs a school that fees are not being paid on principle, and asks that the school not involve the child in the dispute. If a clear-cut definition of education is formulated, a political mandate clearly defined and funding is matched to the mandate, then user fees in public education will no longer exist. Please speak to your local school trustee and question them prior to the election on their position regarding this matter.

Yours truly, L. Sceviour

CALGARY HEALTH REGION CHR flu vaccinations in Didsbury

by Tamara Collins

The Calgary Health Region will launch its annual influenza vaccination program on Oct. 12. This program vaccinates about 250,000 people per season.

Vaccination is a preventative measure that is easy to administer and is readily available. Though most people recover from influenza, severe complications can result, including pneumonia and death. The virus can undergo changes from year to year so annual vaccination is required to provide protection against the newest strains of influenza.

"Influenza vaccination is safe and it only takes a few seconds, but recovery from influenza can take weeks," said Dr. Judy MacDonald, deputy Medical officer of Health, CHR. "We recommend that everyone, even healthy people, get the vaccine. For those people who are at high risk for complications of influenza, vaccination is even more important and provided free of charge."

The target groups for free influenza vaccination, include seniors, infants between 6 and 23 months, persons with chronic medical conditions, and those who can transmit influenza to them (health care workers, household contacts, and pregnant women in their 3rd trimester).

Flu vaccinations will be held at the Didsbury Hospital on Oct. 12th and 13th, from 9 am to 8 pm, on Oct. 23rd from 10 am to 3 pm, and on Oct. 27th from 9 am to 8 pm.

Story Teller Presentation

On October 6, 2004 Merle Harris came to Westglen School to tell stories to all of the students. Merle Harris grew up in Zimbabwe South Africa. She lived in a small gold mining town known as Penhalonga. She grew up with no electricity, no running water and the thing that surprises people the most is her floors were made with cow manure. She started writing books in elementary school and she has been reading and writing ever since. She has written one book called Telling Tales.

However, she mostly tells folk tales and does lots of rewritings. Westglen would like to thank Mrs. Merle Harris for coming to our school and sharing her stories and experiences with us.

rial Complex.

Guest Speaker Supports Youth

The Didsbury & District Chamber of Commerce is delighted to announce Nomi Whalen, as Guest Speaker for the Small Business Week Gala, October 29. Nomi is a former Alderwoman for the City of Calgary and one of Alberta's most prominent Marriage Commissioners.

In cooperation with Nomi Whalen, the Didsbury Chamber of Commerce Gala will be supporting the Alberta Adolescent Recovery Centre (AARC), a charity which, as Nomi says, saves kids lives and performs miracles with adolescent drug and alcohol addiction.

AARC is a Calgary based, non-profit organization that operates a long-term treatment centre for chemically addicted adolescents and their families. Thanks to this exceptional program of recovery, young people graduate with hope instead of despair.

Recent business and residential security break-ins in the town are 70% attributable to drug related issues. The Chamber is pleased to support Nomi's charity as it supports youth and addresses issues affecting Didsbury businesses and the entire community.

Nomi Whalen is a strong proponent of volunteerism in a community, and presently works on the Salvation Army Advisory Board, National Broadcasting Reading Service Board, and is on the Board of the CF-SALT Foundation, providing support for lung transplant recipients.

Nomi is a Juried member of the Federation of Canadian Artists, and Honorary Governor of the CREB Foundation, raising funds for Calgary's community shelters.

She is an Honorary Senator with Theatre Calgary, a charter member of the Alberta Human Rights Commission, and Special Ambassador for the Rotary Challenger Park.

Nomi has been a recipient of many commendations and community awards. A continuing involvement with her community along with her many weddings has given her a well known public persona. She was married to much-loved Calgary broadcaster, Ed Whalen, and was last in Didsbury when she helped MC the Closing Ceremonies of the 1999 Alberta Seniors Games.

Tickets to the Gala are available at the Chamber office, or from any member of the Chamber Board of Directors. Everyone is invited, so call 335-3265 today as tickets are already going fast!

Committed to responsible resource development

Keeping communities involved

As oil and gas activity continues to grow along with rural communities, more lives are being touched by the upstream petroleum industry. Rural stakeholders are moving beyond wanting to be informed about industry activity to wanting to participate in the decisions that affect them.

Effective public involvement is one way to start. Through public involvement, industry promotes dialogue with communities to better understand their concerns, their past experiences and their knowledge of industry. Ongoing communication establishes or improves relations with stakeholders and builds a positive foundation for solving problems, reaching a common goal and making informed decisions.

The Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers' (CAPP) Guide for Effective Public Involvement is one important resource that teaches industry representatives about the fundamentals of community consultation. Recently updated, the Guide demonstrates a commitment to the development of best practices in public involvement.

The Guide is a core document of CAPP's Stewardship initiative which promotes responsible development, systematic management and helps CAPP member companies make continuous improvement in environment, health, safety and socio-economic performance.

"It's all about the relationship, not about the issues. With a relationship based on trust, honesty and respect, issues will be resolved successfully," says Bernie Schell, a community member in Drayton Valley. The guide is a great tool for educating the upstream petroleum industry on what communities need from them. The information is there and when used by industry, it can add to a mutually beneficial relationship."

Caring for the caribou

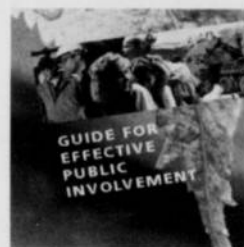

Due to the threat of predators and disturbed habitat, the population of the woodland caribou of the Alberta Boreal Forest has decreased in the past decade to the point where they are considered a threatened species. Increased industrial activity in the Boreal Forest has also impacted the caribou.

In 2001, several oil and gas companies and the Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers joined forces with the forest industry, Environment Canada, Alberta Sustainable Resource Development and the Alberta Conservation Association to sponsor the Caribou Range Restoration Project (CRRP). Past research on caribou behaviour in different areas of Alberta showed that linear disturbances such as roads and seismic lines and their associated impacts may have affected the caribou.

The CRRP is an ongoing project that aims to develop new techniques or best practices that will decrease the historical linear footprint and its associated impacts. For example, work is being done on re-establishing shrub/tree vegetation on old cutlines. Through these initiatives and continued research, the CRRP will continue to work at restoring a more natural habitat for the woodland caribou.

"Our goal is to manage our activities to minimize impacts on the caribou. Through the CRRP, government agencies and oil and gas companies have come together with increased awareness of caribou habitat management and research," says Carol Engstrom, Environmental Biologist with Husky.

Ron Bennett, from the habitat section of the Canadian Wildlife Service division of Environment Canada says, "The Government of Canada Habitat Stewardship Program for Species at Risk supports this project because it addresses issues facing woodland caribou in Alberta. The combination of industry and conservation groups working together to restore caribou habitat is a key feature of this project."

The Guide for Effective Public Involvement teaches industry representatives about the fundamentals of public involvement.

The CRRP develops new techniques or best practices to help restore a more natural habitat for caribou.

NOTES FROM NIGERIA

A prayer meeting

Dear family and friends,

We had prayer meeting at our house this week. It is always good to hear what God has been doing here in Nigeria. One missionary who does church planting reported that the chief of one of the villages where he has been working accepted the Lord this week. In another area some Fulani's came looking for more copies of a seeker's tape. They had been given one but there were several people and with only one tape they all could not listen to it as much as they wanted.

We also prayed for members of the mission community who were sick, had family members who were sick or who were travelling. The October break started on Friday and so many people are travelling.

October 1 was Nigerian Independence Day and a national holiday. We had an assembly on Thursday morning to celebrate. We sang choruses in various Nigerian languages, had a fashion show of traditional Nigerian dress and had a dance troupe perform traditional dances. The dancers were quite amazing. Nigerian dancing is very athletic and takes a lot of energy. The men are incredibly strong, flexible and acrobatic. It made me tired just watching them.

Our phone is not working again. Dan thinks it is because there was an accident at the corner where our line connects with the distribution point. He thinks that pole might have been hit so our line is no longer connected correctly. The electricity in our house also wasn't working right this weekend. The breaker kept flipping off and we would be without power. Dan finally connected us to the power next door but that meant that we couldn't use any heating appliances such as the microwave, toaster, water kettle and the water heater. We can easily do without most of them but a hot shower and hot water for washing dishes is really nice to have. The nice thing about all of this is, since no one is living next door, we could take showers there and haul hot water for washing up from there. I told Dan that it reminded me of summer camp where you had to go to the bath house for a shower. You have to remember to take everything with you, towel, soap, shampoo, clothes and hope you haven't forgotten something essential or that you remember it before you get undressed and in the shower. We can also go to the library to use the phone and check e-mail so all these malfunctions were just inconveniences not real problems. When we think about how others live, we again realize how blessed we are with all that we have even when some things are not working.

We are looking forward to this week of break. I will be working much of the time but without having to teach class, go to meetings or help students with questions, we can focus on getting some library work done. We have much to do. There are six large tables in the library and right now every one of them is piled with books that are in process - in process of being donated to another school or ministry or new books that are in process of being readied for check out. The National Honor Society students donated money to buy some of the library's old books so they could donate them to a school for children of Nigerian missionaries and a children's home for kids who have parents with AIDS.

We are also going to do some sorting of our own stuff and see what we can get rid of now and what we will still want to use. We are trying to downsize so that it will be easier when it is time to actually leave at the end of this school year.

We would appreciate your prayers this week as we try to get many things done. We also realize that we need to get some rest as well. We need wisdom to know how to balance the many things we need to do.

Thanks,
Janet for the Sniders

Didsbury Town Council election special- Part 4

Dorothy Moore is running to complete a second term as mayor of Didsbury.

In 2002 town council, lead by Moore, published an exhaustive annexation and infrastructure study that assessed Didsbury's land and infrastructure needs for the next 30 years.

"We held open houses with the public on the way Didsbury should develop," said Moore. "This study and our Municipal Development Plan include the priorities of residents."

This year council has begun a systematic assessment of existing infrastructure to carry out upgrading and repair to move ahead with their 30 year plan. Council accomplished steps toward their long term priorities, hiring an economic development specialist as the CAO and hosting the regional group seeking future regional cooperation and economic development.

According to Moore, the next three years will be a crucial time in the history of Didsbury:

- For skilled negotiations and experienced, knowledgeable financial management.

- For regional alliances and an understanding of international market opportunities and competition.

- To ensure that service agreements begin to fully cover the costs they incur.

- To restore a healthy balance of non-residential assessment

"I believe that residents have seen the proof they need that I am up to the challenge," said Moore. "I offer decades of successful business experience along with my Master of Business Administration training to assist council and administration in guiding Didsbury through this complex and demanding term. Didsbury has benefited, at no cost, in many ways from my being elected by all towns in Alberta to the Alberta Urban Municipalities Association, beyond the obvious policing funding relief. I regularly meet with provincial cabinet ministers on behalf of towns and they actually are beginning to respond to our concerns."

Moore respectfully represents Didsburians wherever she goes as mayor.

"I believe that I have served Didsburians honorably individually and as a whole. Together with my Council, I have improved the position of the Town financially, politically, physically and within the province," said Moore. In the next three years Didsbury will test and forward our regional initiatives, repair our crumbling infrastructure and celebrate our centennial.

"It is my next goal to have the more than one million dollars in education property tax that we send to the province reduced, then eliminated from your tax bill," said Moore. "Didsbury taxpayers have been, and are, my first priority. I trust taxpayers to make good choices in this election."

Dorothy Moore

Bruce Weese

Bruce Weese may be a stranger to running for town council, but he has an extensive business background that he knows will help.

Weese made the decision to run after it was suggested to him.

"After discussing it with my friends and family, I decided to let my name stand," said Weese.

Weese is another candidate that feels more industry is needed in Didsbury.

"You need to have a strong business component or there will be a heavy load on the residential side," said Weese.

Weese would also like to expand on the town's existing youth programs. He presently organizes the Hub Junior Dragster, a popular event in town.

"The youth need to remain active," said Weese. "They need to have a pride in where they live."

Weese moved to Didsbury over three years ago, and he says he has been blessed ever since.

"We love it here," said Weese. "We have a tremendous church family and our business is doing well." Weese believes his strong business background could be a great asset to the new council.

"Fiscal decisions will need to be made," said Weese. "I believe I could lend skill and experience." Weese has been working with people his whole career and believes he has a good relationship with most.

"I am very diverse," said Weese. "I have a good business background, and I am open minded. I can make good decisions because I care about Didsbury."

Stan Neufeld decided to run for Town council after encouragement from his friends and neighbors. This will be his first time running, but Neufeld is ready for the challenge.

"I have a lot of interest in civic issues," said Neufeld. "I also am retired, so I have the time to commit."

Neufeld is presently building a new house in Didsbury, where he has lived for two and a half years now.

Although Neufeld has not been here for too long, Neufeld is an old friend to the community where his great grandparents came to in 1901.

Neufeld was employed with Telus for over 35 years. In that time he has gained a lot of business experience in board work and management.

"I would develop business plans for work," said Neufeld. "I think I could add some value to the council in some areas."

Taxes is a concern for Neufeld, who said he paid less taxes living in Calgary than he does in Didsbury.

"I understand why that is," said Neufeld. "I just think council needs to work diligently. We do not want the higher taxes to stop people from coming to Didsbury."

The answer, Neufeld believes, is to seek revenues from other sources, and not raise user fees.

"We need to increase industry and business in town, our base is far too small," said Neufeld. "Didsbury is a great place to live, and the only way to handle all these taxes is to bring more people here."

Neufeld is excited for the new council, he feels it is a positive thing for Didsburians.

"Council just has to be sure to work together," said Neufeld. "It must be a team approach."

Neufeld presently volunteers with citizens on patrol, and wants to further his community involvement.

"We need to grow as a town, while maintaining the quality of life here," said Neufeld.

"We need to focus on building partnerships with different programs around town, so the youth have more to do. Didsbury is a safe and secure community and we need to keep it that way."

Better Health Care for Canadians: A 10-year plan

Working together, the Prime Minister, Premiers and Territorial leaders have signed a 10-year plan, supported by $41 billion in new federal funding, that will lead to better health care for Canadians.

Better Health Care

- ✓ Reduce waiting times
 - Improve access so that Canadians don't wait as long for key tests, treatments and surgeries
- ✓ More Doctors, Nurses and other Health Professionals
 - Plans to train and hire more health professionals while also developing faster accreditation for foreign-trained health professionals
- ✓ Expand home care
 - Provide better support for people being cared for or recovering at home
- ✓ Improve access to family and community care
 - Increase 24/7 access to doctors, nurses and other health professionals
- ✓ Better Access to Needed Medicines
 - A commitment to manage drug costs and ensure that no family is forced to choose between needed medicines and financial ruin
- ✓ Improved Aboriginal Health
 - New investments and better planning to close the gap between Aboriginals and other Canadians in terms of health

Shorter Waiting Times

The federal, provincial and territorial governments have committed to report clearly on the progress we are making in health care and, for the first time will report on progress in reducing waiting times.

- ✓ Comparable indicators ... so we can measure
 - Federal, provincial and territorial governments will use comparable information to report their progress in improving access to doctors, and to diagnostic and treatment procedures
- ✓ Benchmarks ... so we know what we are striving for
 - Federal, provincial and territorial governments will set medically acceptable waiting times - based on advice from medical experts - starting with cancer, heart disease, diagnostic imaging, joint replacement, and sight restoration
- ✓ Targets ... to drive change
 - Provincial and territorial governments will set their own targets and report annually to citizens on progress in reducing waiting times

Canadians will see for themselves where their health care money is going and how it is making a difference.

CALGARY
HEALTH REGION

Continuing Care in the Rural Communities

Courtney Rousseau, Vice-Chair of the
CHR's Report to the Community

Planning is underway to address the future needs of continuing care in the rural communities of the Calgary Health Region. This intensive process will examine current needs and facilities, find methods to meet the continuing care requirements for the future, and ensure that future rural needs and resources are reflected in the Region's Continuing Care Capacity Plan. The review will include various care options such as long term care, designated assisted living and supported living.

Calgary Health Region officials will travel to various parts of the region to discuss care options and future needs. We will keep you informed of the dates of these information sessions.

Region Acts Quickly to Avert Meningitis Threat

In mid-summer, the town of Banff recorded its third case of meningitis within six months. Normally, the mountain community records no more than two cases a year. This was the third case involving a seasonal worker between the ages of 19 and 21 and this cluster of cases suggested that young adults aged 18 to 24 might be at risk.

In cooperation with the Town of Banff and the local business community, Region health officials took immediate action. Within days, a medical team implemented a meningitis vaccination program for people between the ages of 18 to 24 who lived or worked in the town of Banff.

The vaccination program is a good example of how quickly the Calgary Health Region can mobilize to head-off a potential public health problem. With close and careful monitoring of diseases like meningitis, the Region is able to rapidly detect a potential hot spot and take immediate steps to protect those at risk.

Changes to Physiotherapy Services

After extensive consultation with physiotherapists and physicians, the Calgary Health Region made a number of changes to the delivery of physiotherapy services effective September 1. Our goal is to improve the current system to ensure that people with the highest need for physiotherapy will receive services in a timely fashion.

In consultation with local providers, rural planning is underway to design enhanced rehabilitation services for people with long-standing medical problems such as arthritis or post-stroke.

Clients who require physiotherapy for specific conditions such as broken bones and post-operative care (e.g. knee replacements) should attend a Calgary Health Region-contracted physiotherapy clinic. These clinics are located throughout Calgary and the surrounding rural areas and receive Calgary Health Region funding. The Region will pay for up to six physiotherapy visits following a fracture and up to nine visits following a surgery or procedure.

People who have a low-income and a high need for physiotherapy also will have access to publicly-funded physiotherapy services either in contracted clinics or in health facilities in areas where there is not a contracted clinic. Physiotherapy may also be covered by Workers Compensation, personal health insurance, auto insurance, or individuals may choose to pay directly for these services.

Building Initiatives Offer Exciting Future for Southern Alberta

Premier Ralph Klein joined construction crews and community leaders at the site of the new south hospital in July, climbing aboard a 50-tonne earth mover, to officially kick-start land preparations that will pave the way for construction. The Premier described the project as a 'hospital for the 21st century', a demonstration of the government's ongoing commitment to the future of health care for southern Alberta. The new hospital will add approximately 300 beds in its first phase - beds that are very much needed as the Health Region continues to deal with immense pressures placed on the system by phenomenal population growth in Calgary and the surrounding area.

The Okotoks Health and Wellness Centre is slated to open November 3 and will become the new home to a number of health services including public health, mental health, community care and lab & diagnostic imaging. Urgent care will also open its doors from 8am - 10pm, seven days a week, 365 days per year. Urgent care is for people whose health concerns are urgent but not life threatening. A community open house has been scheduled for the public to tour the new facility on October 27 from noon - 8pm.

Extensive renovations at the High River Hospital have been completed. An additional 5,000 square feet were added to the existing hospital which includes two new trauma rooms, a new ambulance bay, renovated emergency room and day surgery area.

Work on the new Alberta Children's Hospital is progressing rapidly. The facility is now scheduled to open three months ahead of schedule, in August 2006. In June, Premier Ralph Klein helped workers pour the last load of concrete near the new hospital's entrance.

QUESTION: Our 15-year-old daughter is getting some rough treatment at the hands of her peers these days. She wasn't invited to a party given by a girl who had been her best friend, and she cried herself to sleep that night. It's just tearing me up to see her hurt like this. Will this experience leave lifelong scars on her mind?

DR. DOBSON: It's all a matter of degree. Most teenagers experience a measure of rejection like your daughter is experiencing. They typically roll with the punches and eventually get beyond the discomfort. Others, however, are wounded for life by the rejection of those adolescent experiences. I suggest you give your daughter plenty of emotional support, keep her talking and do what you can to help her cope. I think she'll get her legs under her when the pressure of these years has passed.

Let me address the larger issue here. When we see our children struggling with the teen experience or other frustrations, it's natural to wish we could sweep aside the problems and obstacles. Sometimes we have to be reminded that the human personality grows through adversity. "No pain, no gain," as they say. Those who have conquered their problems are more secure than those who have never faced them.

I learned the value of hard times from my own experience. During my seventh and eighth grades, I lived through the most painful years of my life. I found myself in a social cross-fire that gave rise to intense feelings of inferiority and doubt. And yet those two years have contributed more positive qualities to my adult personality than any other span of my life. What I learned through that experience is still useful to me today.

Though it may be hard to accept now, your child needs the minor setbacks and disappointments that come her way. How can she learn to cope with problems and frustrations if her early experiences are totally without trial?

Nature tells us this is true. A tree that's planted in a rain forest is never forced to extend its roots downward in search of water. Consequently, it remains poorly anchored and can be toppled by even a moderate wind. By contrast, a mesquite tree that's planted in a dry desert is threatened by its hostile environment. It can survive only by sending its roots down 30 feet or more into the earth, seeking cool water. But through this adaptation to an arid land, the well-rooted tree becomes strong and steady against all assailants.

Our children are like the two trees in some ways. Those who have learned to conquer their problems are better anchored than those who have never faced them.

Our task as parents, then, is not to eliminate every challenge for our children, but to serve as a confident ally on their behalf, encouraging them when they are distressed, intervening when the threats are overwhelming, and above all, giving them the tools they need to overcome the obstacles.

QUESTION: What is your opinion of Nintendo and other kinds of video games? They've been claiming a big portion of our son's time over the past few months, and I'm getting uneasy about it.

DR. DOBSON: Depending on the particular games in question, you may have a valid cause for concern. Dr. Vince Hammond, head of the National Coalition on Television Violence, has described the potentially harmful nature of video games, especially those with violent themes. Some observers have come to the conclusion that these games can become obsessive and encourage aggressive behaviour. There's even evidence to suggest that children between the ages of 8 and 10 are 80 percent more likely to fight with one another after playing with them.

I'd advise you to put clear limits on the amount of time your son will be allowed to spend with video games or the Internet so that he won't become obsessed with them. Insist that he avoid the violent ones altogether. With realistic guidelines, I think it's possible to keep this kind of activity under control rather than letting it control your son and your family.

Colts' bench boss will be patient with young team

by Barry Williams

As the Heritage Junior Hockey League swings into action for another season, Mountainview Colts' bench boss, Darcy Austin realizes he will have to be patient with the young players.

"This season we have only five veteran players returning, so it will take some time before the younger players start feeling comfortable with each other," said Austin, after the Colts' home opener in Didsbury on Sunday, Oct. 3 against the Banff Icemen.

Three unanswered goals in the second period by the Icemen broke a close 3-2 game wide open and enabled Banff to skate away with a 7-5 victory before a large crowd at the Didsbury Memorial Complex.

"Our inexperience was evident in the game," Austin added.

In the first period, Matt Collinge and Will Harvie dented the twine for the Colts with Brad Meyers, Harry Maheshi and Bryce Platt replying for the Icemen.

Maheshi and Platt added their second goals of the game in the second period while Luke Irwin rounded out the three goal Icemen outburst in the second stanza.

Despite goals off the sticks of Collinge and Ian Brander in the third period, the Colts were unable to close the gap on the scoreboard and as a result they suffered their second consecutive loss in early season play.

According to Austin, the Colts ran into penalty problems in the second stanza and the Icemen took advantage of the extra man situation by denting the twine for two power play goals.

"There is no doubt the penalties and our defensive play hurt us in the game," Austin added.

A community based team, the Colts have a solid base of local players on the squad as the majority of the players played minor hockey in Carstairs, Didsbury, Olds and Sundre.

Although this is Austin's first year at the helm of the Colts, he is familiar with the talented pool of hockey players within the Mountain View County and he plans to use this to his advantage.

"Most of these players have played with and against each other in minor hockey, so they do know each other," Austin added.

"Because they come from different minor hockey organizations, their philosophies about the game are varied and different," added Austin.

"Right now, it's my job to get them playing on the same page," he added, indicating this will take some time and preparation.

As the season progresses, Austin expects the team to mature and improve and he believes the Colts are legitimate play off contenders.

When the team broke training camp in preparation for the 2004/2005 Heritage Junior Hockey League season, Austin noted the players set a team goal of qualifying for post season play.

And the players have previously tasted success as some of them were members of the Didsbury Midgets when they won the Midget A Central Alberta Minor Hockey Association league championship two years in a row.

According to Austin, the Colts have an excellent working relationship with Didsbury, Olds, Carstairs and Sundre Minor Hockey Associations and in the next weeks he hopes to cement relations with the Rocky Mountain Midget AAA Lightning, members of the Rural Alberta Midget AAA Hockey League.

"I am quite impressed with the Lightning as I have had the opportunity to watch them practice, it looks like they have an excellent team," Austin added.

Because the Lightning play their games on the weekends and most of them conflict with the Colts schedule, Austin is not sure how much playing time the Colts can offer to the Lightning players.

"During the year, I will keep in touch with them (Lightning) and hopefully we can use a few of their players later on in the season," Austin added.

Also, the Colts work closely with the Didsbury Minor Hockey Association and they have affiliated five players from the Didsbury Midgets.

"It is important to keep the lines of communications open with the local Midget teams and the Olds Grizzlys," noted Austin.

When the Grizzlys make their final cuts, Austin is hoping one or more of the cut players will opt to finish the hockey season with the Colts.

On Saturday, Oct. 2, the Colts trekked into Airdrie and were defeated by the Thunder 9-2.

Brad Roessler, the league's leading scorer, blinked the red light four times for the Thunder with Padrouck Stables, John Roedler, Tyler Reid Adam Schaffer and Curtis Anka adding singletons. For the Colts, Wade Ogle dented the twine twice.

OBITUARY

SCHMIDT

Mary Schmidt, treasured wife of Ike Schmidt for almost 51 years, passed away suddenly at the age of 71 years. She was born on February 12, 1933 at Simons Valley and raised on a farm in Namaka with 4 siblings: Lena (Jack) Friesen (predeceased), John (Lil) Eitzen, Abe (Lorraine) Eitzen and Ann (Len) Regier. Mary will be lovingly remembered by her daughter Linda (Gary) Armagost and sons Ron (Jody) Schmidt and Gord Schmidt; 6 grandchildren Cassidy and Rylee, Logan and Troy, Christine and Carrie; 4 great-grandchildren Rhyliagh and Brenden, Caelan and Ashley as well as numerous other cousins, nieces, nephews and in-laws. Mary was married on October 25, 1953 and was heavily involved with the business of family farming as well as being a Royal Conservatory of Music piano teacher and occasionally a Sunday School teacher. She was best known around communities as "the lady who plays the bells" which she did for shut-ins, seniors or any other groups. She was also a member of the Dardanelle Singers of the IODE. She enthusiastically volunteered for the IODE and assisted with projects such as; Care Bear Project for RCMP Victim Services, Fresh-Start Project for abused spouses and Personal Property Bag Project for teens on the street. In 1994, Mary & Ike moved into their second new home that they built and designed together in Didsbury. They selected the town of Didsbury so they could be close to a hospital which she was visiting fairly often for treatment and control of the chronic asthma that she developed in the early 1970's. Mary was also known around town as "the lady who always had smiles and was so pleasant and friendly". Her cheery disposition, enthusiastic volunteerism and gift of music will be sorely missed by all, but cherished forever. Funeral services were held on Thursday, October 7 at 3:00 p.m. in the Bergthal Mennonite Church. Interment followed in the Bergthal Cemetery. Memorial donations may be made directly to the Rosebud Health Foundation, Alberta Heart & Stroke Foundation, Asthma Society or Bergthal Mennonite Church Memorial Fund. As a tribute to Mary Schmidt, a tree will be planted in the Heartland Tree Memorial Park, Olds. Heartland Funeral Services, Olds, entrusted with arrangements.

In Loving Memory of
our dear husband, father, grampa
Jack Frank Weigel
who passed away Oct. 14 - 1998

Do not stand by my grave and weep.
I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow.
I am diamond glint of snow.
I am the sunlight
on ripened grain.
I am the gentle autumn rain.
When you awake
in the morning hush.
I am the swift uplifting rush of quiet birds in flight.
If tears could build a stairway
And heartaches made a lane
We'd walk a path to heaven
To bring you home again.

Loved, remembered
and deeply missed
Mary Ann and families

In loving memory of
a dear brother-in-law and uncle,
Gary Buck,
who passed away
1 year ago October 14, 2003

Remember Gary
with a smile today
He would not want the tears
Reflect instead on memories of all the happy years
Recall the way he spoke,
his wit and all the things he said
Remember these instead.

In loving memory: David, Cindy,
Kathy, Ryan, Kyle & Belinda
